

The following materials are part of the committee meeting materials and are available upon request. However, they are not being posted because of potential concerns about copyright, even though they are available for informational purposes only.

- Sarah Brady et al., “Adverse events following trigger point dry needling: a prospective survey of chartered physiotherapists,” Journal of Manual and Manipulative Therapy, vol. 22, No. 3, 2014.
- Jan Dommerholt, “Professional controversies and dry needling,” chapter 5 in “Trigger Point Dry Needling: An Evidence and Clinical-Based Approach,” published by Churchill Livingstone, 2013.
- Federation of State Boards of Physical Therapy, “FSBPT Resource Paper Regarding Dry Needling”, 5th edition, December 2014.
- Claudia M. Witt, et al., “Safety of Acupuncture: Results of a Prospective Observational Study with 229,230 Patients and Introduction of a Medical Information and Consent Form,” published in Forschende Komplementärmedizin, published online April 9, 2009.