Combating Substance Abuse Compels a Pound of Prevention and a Pound of Cure

A Report to the 59th Legislature
From the
Children, Families, Health, and Human Services
Interim Committee

October 2004

Prepared by
Susan Byorth Fox, Research Analyst
Office of Research and Policy Analysis
Montana Legislative Services Division
Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Interim Committee

Membership and Tenure on Committee

Representative Don Roberts ('03)
Presiding Officer
5414 Walter Hagen Dr
Billings, MT 59106-1007

Representative Eve Franklin ('99)
Vice Presiding Officer
2707 Dawn Drive
Great Falls, MT 59404

Representative Edith Clark ('03)
PO Box 34
Sweetgrass, MT 59484-0034

Representative Carol Gibson ('03)
3028 Avenue E
Billings, MT 59102

Senator Jerry O'Neil ('01)
PO Box 2058
Kalispell, MT  59903

Senator Gerald Pease ('01)
PO Box 556
Lodge Grass MT  59050

Senator Trudi Schmidt ('99)
4029 6th Avenue South
Great Falls, MT 59405-3746

Senator John Esp ('03)
PO Box 1024
Big Timber, MT 59011-1024

Staff

Susan Byorth Fox, Research Analyst
Dawn Field, Secretary
Greg Petesch, Chief Legal Counsel

Legislative Services Division
Room 110, State Capitol
Phone: (406) 444-3064
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Membership and Staff

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments

Chapter One

Preface

Introduction

Summary of Committee Recommendations

Study Plan and Committee Activities

Other Committee Work

Administrative Rule Review

Monitoring and Program Evaluation

Standing reports

Mental Health Ombudsman

Legislative Fiscal Division Staff Reports

Public health statutes review

DPHHS Executive Planning Process legislative proposals

DPHHS legislative audit reports

Update on mental health issues

Service area authorities

Role of the existing community mental health centers

State Health Planning Grant

Emerging Issues

Treatment courts

TANF benefit cut and surplus

CHIP contract and reserves

TANF, food stamps, and drug offenders

American Massage Therapy Association, Montana Chapter

National Association of Social Workers, Montana Chapter

Legislative priorities

Unregulated youth residential facilities

Chapter Two: Committee Interim Study: HJR 3

Court-appointed special advocate/guardian ad litem

Treatment courts

CasCo Project

Child Protection Unit in the Department of Justice

Recommendations to Law and Justice Interim Committee

HJR 3 Stand-alone bill draft request

Chapter Three: Committee Interim Study: SJR 11

Coordinated Statewide Leadership 10/03

Prevention programs

Preliminary Proposals to Address Coordinated Statewide Leadership

Technical assistance from the National Conference of State Legislatures

Coordinated Statewide Leadership 4/04
Methamphetamine Cleanup Standards .................................
Correctional substance abuse treatment programs ................
Coordinated Statewide Leadership 6/04 ............................
Methamphetamine Summit .........................................
Coordinated Statewide Leadership 8/04 and Committee recommendations .................................

Chapter Four ..........................................................................................

Areas for Future Study .................................................................

Legislative Staff Reports and Available Materials .......................
  Legislative Services Division ..............................................
  Legislative Fiscal Division .................................................
  Legislative Audit Division ...............................................
  Department of Public Health and Human Services ..................
  Office of Public Instruction ............................................
  Governor’s Office ............................................................
  Public Reports .................................................................

Appendices ....................................................................................

Appendix A: LC0294: Office of Substance Abuse and Prevention and Commissioner .................................
Appendix B: LC0295: Resolution supporting prevention activities into next administration ................................
Appendix C: List of DPHHS Legislative Proposals .........................
Appendix D: HJR3 Recommendations to Law and Justice Interim Committee .................................
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to thank Judge Kenneth O'Neil, Mayor Randy Gray, and Dr. Dan Nauts of Great Falls for their tireless efforts in the war on methamphetamine use and for their assistance in the drafting of the SJR 11 resolution. They and their task force steadfastly provided information and public testimony for the Committee's deliberations. It is their frustration with the effects of methamphetamine on their community and their day-to-day efforts that are fueling the state's activities to combat the devastating effects of methamphetamine on our communities. My hat is off to their efforts and the efforts of all of the folks on the Great Falls Methamphetamine Task Force.

I wish to also thank Vicki Turner of the Prevention Resource Center, Peg Shea of Western Montana Addiction Services, and Roland Mena, first as Bureau Chief of the Chemical Dependency Bureau and later as the Executive Director of the Montana Board of Crime Control, for their assistance and patience in the development of the coordinated statewide leadership proposals. For their assistance in educating the Committee and staff on addiction, treatment, and prevention and in providing creative solutions for the Committee's consideration, I am eternally grateful.

Lastly, I wish to thank Gail Gray as Director of the Department of Public Health and Human Services for her willingness to appear before the Committee and for cheerfully providing information whenever it was requested. Thanks to all of her staff, especially Shirley K. Brown for her assistance with HJR 3 and Maggie Bullock for assistance on SJR 11, and a special thanks to the Addictive and Mental Disorders staff who assisted me in the SJR 11 study: Ken Taylor, Jackie Jandt, and Chuck Michaud and to their new administrators Joan Cassidy and Joyce DeCunzo who jumped right in to help.
CHAPTER ONE

Preface

The Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Interim Committee (Committee) spent the interim looking at the effects and costs of substance abuse on our society through two different interim studies. Senate Joint Resolution No. 11 directed study of the problems of alcohol and drug abuse and of prevention, early intervention, and treatment. House Joint Resolution No. 3 directed a study of representation of parents who are involved in child protective proceedings and are in danger of having their parental rights terminated. In some ways both studies, although seemingly unrelated on their face, demonstrate the effects of substance abuse. Families involved in child abuse and neglect proceedings often have substance abuse issues at the core of their problems. Methamphetamine use and its devastating effects on individuals, families, and communities has brought substance abuse to the forefront. By all accounts, attempts to deal with the problems at the back end--problems of addiction, criminal behavior, poor or absent parenting, or lab cleanup--are consuming massive amounts of resources with no "cure" in sight.

A recent national study evaluated state budgets in 1998 to determine the impact of substance abuse and addiction in 16 budget categories, including health, social services, criminal justice, education, mental health, and others. On average, of every $100 that the state of Montana spent on substance abuse in 1998: $96.75 was spent on public programs, $2.82 was spent on prevention, treatment, and research, and $0.43 was spent on regulation and compliance. Recent studies reveal savings of as much as $23 saved for every $1 spent on treatment, taking arrests, incarceration, child welfare, social welfare, and Medicaid costs into account.¹

¹From the report: Shoveling Up: the Impact of Substance Abuse on State Budgets. National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse; Columbia University, 2001.
The Committee this interim stepped back and established prevention and treatment as its main topics. It worked on a theme raised by the previous Task Force on Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Control Policy that recognized the lack of coordinated statewide leadership in this area. At this point, society does not have the luxury of choosing an ounce of prevention over a pound of cure or vice versa. But if all of government resources are spent on the effects of substance abuse, in essence trying to cure the results, prevention suffers. The Committee’s interim work recommends prevention in the form of an Office of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment. It also recommends legal representation for parents at the beginning of the child protective process in which the state intervenes on a child’s behalf, instead of at the point at which the parents are losing their parental rights. For many of these issues, it will take both a pound of prevention and a pound of cure to tip the balance to preventing and treating the problems, instead of pouring all of the resources into battling the net results of the problems.

Introduction

The Committee is the descendant of the former Joint Oversight Committee on Children and Families. Begun as a study committee authorized by House Joint Resolution No. 54 in 1991, it was continued for a second biennium under a study resolution in 1993 and became a permanent interim committee in 1995 (Ch. 414, L. 1995).

The current interim committee structure was created in 1999 (Senate Bill No. 11, Ch. 19, L. 1999). Senate Bill No. 11 placed responsibility for monitoring each of the Executive Branch agencies under one of the nine interim committees or the Environmental Quality Council. In addition, interim committee duties were reformulated, adding administrative rule review and program evaluation. The monitoring functions for the Department of Public Health and Human Services (DPHHS) and its attached entities were assigned to this Committee (5-5-225, MCA).

———

In 2001, the Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 10 (Ch. 210) revising interim committee functions to include responsibility for reviewing draft legislation proposed by state agencies. This function was previously performed by the Legislative Council that, as a courtesy, would request all agency legislation. The change was intended to provide more continuity between the interim and the session by having the committee that is involved in a specific subject area preview the policy concepts that the agencies are proposing. As a courtesy, the Committee acts as the requestor for the legislation, which allows it to be drafted and preintroduced for consideration by the full Legislature in the following legislative session.

Summary of Committee Recommendations

1. On April 30, 2004, the Committee made its recommendations to the Law and Justice Interim Committee (LJIC) from the HJR 3 study:
   - to consider statutory changes to require appointment of legal counsel for all parents, guardians, or those with legal custody who are involved in child abuse and neglect proceedings at the point in the process that may result in removal or placement of a child or termination of parental rights as a consideration in the development of a public defender system in the state. The Committee also asked the LJIC to consider a family law specialist in the public defender system to assist public defenders in difficult cases, and recommended a background or expertise in family law for those attorneys who are assigned these cases in a public defender system.
   - to consider requesting information from either the State Court Administrator or the DPHHS Child and Family Services Division, in cooperation with the other, to determine the numbers of parents, guardians, and those with legal custody of children who would require legal counsel in removal, placement, and termination proceedings;
• urging that "indigency" be statutorily defined;
• to consider that an accurate assessment be made of the cost to provide a guardian ad litem to each child alleged to be abused or neglected; to request that additional information on the number of children who may also need legal counsel should be included in any request for additional information; to develop standards for guardians ad litem (changes in the federal level now require training) and specify responsibilities when a public defender is also involved; and although it is outside the scope of this study, to also consider specific staff training for attorneys assigned to child abuse and neglect cases;
• to keep the court-appointed special advocate/guardian ad litem
(CASA/GAL) program in the State Court Administrator's Office;
• to support the concepts of "reasonable case loads" and "consistency and continuity" in representation.

2. On January 23, 2004, the Committee approved writing a letter to both the DPHHS and to the Governor requesting an Attorney General's opinion on the matter of whether the mental health ombudsman was a health oversight entity and, if the matter was not resolved by an Attorney General's opinion, requesting that the Committee draft legislation to clarify the matter. An Attorney General's opinion was not requested, and legislation was drafted for consideration. The Committee approved draft legislation (LC0144) at the August 27, 2004, meeting to allow the Mental Health Ombudsman to be designated as a health oversight agency and to address related information access issues.

3. At the April 29, 2004, meeting the Committee requested that staff draft legislation for discussion purposes that would remove the prohibition on granting public benefits to felony drug offenders, with some requirements on offenders. The Committee made a formal bill draft request in June 2004 (LC0031) and approved an amended draft at the final August 27, 2004, meeting.

4. The Committee was asked by the Code Commissioner to review a cleanup issue with regard to Montana's Safe Haven Newborn Protection Act. An internal reference remained in statute after a temporary section terminated. If the Committee sponsors the legislation, it can retain references to a person who wishes to surrender an infant contacting the DPHHS and receiving information regarding counseling. The Committee requested a formal bill draft request (LC0145) at the June 2004 meeting and in August adopted the draft and directed that it be coordinated with the Code Commissioner's bill.

5. At the June 2004 meeting, the Committee adopted draft legislation (LC0146) to repeal the provisions of Senate Bill No. 473 (Ch. 551), passed in the 2003 Legislature because the DPHHS had abandoned efforts to implement the program because of the implementation of the federal Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement and Modernization Act of 2003.

6. At its final meeting, on August 27, 2004, the Committee made the following recommendations:
   - To create an Office of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment headed by a Commissioner and attached to the Governor's Office in order to provide coordinated statewide leadership across agencies in the areas of substance abuse prevention and treatment (LC0294). It was recommended that the Commissioner be a cabinet-level position and a member of the Montana Board of Crime Control. The Interagency Coordinating Council on Prevention would be repealed, although the legislation requires the Commissioner to use some form of advisory council. (See Appendix A.)
   - To adopt a resolution encouraging the next administration to continue the efforts of this administration and especially the efforts of the Departments of Public Health and Human Services and Corrections to improve interagency and intra-agency prevention and treatment efforts (LC0295).
(See Appendix B.)

• To request through a letter that the Governor's Office of Budget and Program Planning review existing multiple advisory councils in areas related to substance abuse prevention or treatment to explore the possibility of downsizing or consolidating to provide resources to support a Commissioner and the Office of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment.

Study Plan and Committee Activities

The first meeting of the 2003-2004 interim was held August 22, 2003, at which time the Committee elected its officers: Representative Don Roberts was elected presiding officer and Representative Eve Franklin was elected vice presiding officer. Committee legal counsel provided an overview of the Committee's administrative rule review responsibilities. Staff presented a list of issues that included assigned interim studies, possible topics derived from the DPHHS structure, 2003 legislative issues, and interested persons' concerns that provided a guide for the activities of the interim. The Committee adopted its interim work plan at the first meeting.

The Committee held a total of two 1-day meetings and four 2-day meetings over the interim, in addition to other meetings that many members attended on behalf of the Committee. Committee minutes and exhibits, including reports, are available on the Committee website or from the Legislative Services Division for each of the following meeting dates:

• August 22, 2003
• October 30 and 31, 2003
• January 22 and 23, 2004
• April 29 and 30, 2004
• June 29 and 30, 2004

The Committee received a Director’s report at each meeting from Gail Gray, Director of the DPHHS or from the Deputy Director, John Chappuis. The Committee received presentations from the DPHHS division administrators when topics of interest arose or in the course of study. The divisions and administrators as of August 2004 were:

1. Addictive and Mental Disorders Division - Joyce DeCunzo
2. Child and Family Services Division - Shirley Brown
3. Child Support Enforcement Division - Lonnie Olson
4. Disability Services Division - Joe Mathews
5. Public Health and Safety Division (formerly Health Policy and Services Division) - Jane Smilie, Acting Administrator
6. Human and Community Services Division - Hank Hudson
7. Operations and Technology Division - Mike Billings
8. Quality Assurance Division - Mary Dalton
9. Senior and Long Term Care Division - Kelly Williams
10. Child and Adult Health Resources Division (new, including children’s mental health, children’s special health, CHIP, and primary care Medicaid services) - Chuck Hunter
11. Office of Planning, Coordination, and Analysis - (formerly Office of Program Finance) - Gail Briese-Zimmer

Interim studies that were assigned or of interest to the Committee were:

- House Joint Resolution No. 3: an interim study to examine child abuse and neglect proceedings in order to determine how to provide representation for indigent families and to determine the appropriate earliest opportunity for representation.

House Joint Resolution No. 3 was requested by the 2001-2002 Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Interim Committee after receiving information regarding the child abuse and neglect system, including the suggestion of appointment of legal counsel for parents early on in the process. Additional information was provided in the October 2002 legislative performance audit on the Child and Family Services Division. A recommendation was not offered, but the audit noted that there was statewide variation in whether indigent parents received legal representation in child abuse and neglect proceedings prior to termination of parental rights. The Legislative Council assigned this study to the Committee.

- Senate Joint Resolution No. 11 directed the Committee to:
  (1) review the progress made by the Governor's and Attorney General's Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Control Policy Task Force and proposals enacted by the 58th Legislature; and
  (2) continue to identify the issues and to develop proposals for a coordinated, cooperative effort by federal, state, and local levels of government and the private sector to implement prevention and early intervention efforts, to develop and use alternatives to incarceration, and to provide appropriate treatment opportunities at the most effective time and in the most cost-effective and efficient manner.

Senate Joint Resolution No 11 was passed during the 2003 Legislature, ranked sixth in priority for interim studies, and assigned to the Committee by the Legislative Council. SJR 11 proposed a study of the problems of alcohol and drug abuse and prevention, early intervention, and treatment. The study was intended to continue the efforts of the Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Control Policy Task Force (2001-2002).

- House Joint Resolution No. 13: requesting that the Department of Public Health and Human Services conduct a study regarding the health programs administered by the department and provide a report to the 59th Legislature outlining options that may be undertaken to redesign the health programs administered by the department. The effort was known as "Medicaid redesign." The DPHHS created the Public Health Care Advisory Council composed of representatives from the public, Medicaid consumers, representatives from hospitals, health insurance providers, physicians, and legislators. Members of the Committee who served on this Council included Representative Edith Clark and Senator Trudi Schmidt. Other legislators who served included Senator Bob Keenan, Representative Dan Hurwitz, and Representative Jonathan Windy Boy. The Committee received regular reports from the DPHHS Director and members of the Committee, as well as analyses on the efforts from the staff of the Legislative Fiscal Division.

The Council made 18 recommendations in the following categories:

(1) Recommendations 1 through 4 have already been fully adopted by the department and are being integrated into the current operations. These include recommendations to define fundamental values, principles, and goals, incorporate funding priorities, implement management principles, and establish reimbursement principles.

(2) Recommendations 5 through 10 involve adjustments or refocusing of existing programs and do not require legislation or changes in funding. These include recommendations to maximize Medicaid third-party liability, implement a Medicaid field eligibility review, implement a community health center demonstration project, develop a strategic plan for adult mental health services, develop a long-term care education plan, and participate in a health education program.

(3) The remaining recommendations, 11 through 18, require action by the state Legislature and/or federal government. While the department can begin the process of developing appropriate legislative language and begin preliminary negotiation with the federal agencies, actual implementation of the recommendations will not occur until after the 2005 Legislative Session or final approval by the federal government, or both.
These include recommendations to improve services for seriously emotionally disturbed children, submit a health insurance flexibility and accountability waiver, initiate changes in Medicaid eligibility, seek tribal exemption, implement pharmacy cost containment, develop a transportation brokerage system, and seek codifying legislation.

The DPHHS submitted several bill draft proposals to the Committee to implement the Medicaid redesign for which the Committee submitted requests for legislation for consideration during the 2005 Legislature. (See Appendix C.)

Other Committee Work

Legislators from the Committee served in many capacities on other related committees:
  Representative Don Roberts: SJR 22 interim study on medical liability insurance.
  Representative Eve Franklin: Montana Faith Health Cooperative Demonstration Project Grant Review Committee.
  Senator Gerald Pease: State-Tribal Relations Interim Committee
Senator Trudi Schmidt, Committee staff, and other Montana and DPHHS representatives participated as a part of a Montana delegation to a Center for Substance Abuse and Treatment Conference on Methamphetamine and Marijuana Abuse and Treatment in Boise, Idaho, in February of 2004. The group learned about addictions, successful programs, and federal funding sources.

Research staff also attended a "Resources for Recovery: State Practices that Expand Treatment Opportunities" meeting in Arizona, sponsored by The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, with representatives from the DPHHS and the Governor’s Budget Office.

Committee staff also created and maintained a website for the Committee at http://leg.mt.gov under Committees>Interim>Children, Families, Health, and Human Services that provides access to agendas, minutes, staff reports, and other information about Committee activities. Relevant information from this and past interims is available.

Administrative Rule Review

The Legislative Services Division legal staff reviews all DPHHS rulemaking notices regarding the proposal or adoption of a new rule or an amendment to a rule—a duty that remains the same in method, timing, purpose, and review of legality as it did for the former Administrative Code Committee. The review is triggered by the submission of a notice to the Secretary of State by a state agency of a proposal for adoption, amendment, or repeal of an administrative rule. After a public hearing is held (if any) and public comments are considered, a notice of adoption of the rule is published and the rule becomes effective. The purpose of the legal staff review is to determine if the Montana Administrative Procedure Act and other statutes were followed. The agency determines legislative intent by the language of the statute, which may or may not include a statement of purpose, by speaking to the prime sponsor and from other public comments. The Committee legal staff reviews only the proposed rule and the enabling
The review is intended to catch legal errors, but it is not intended to judge the merit of the idea or other possible interpretations of intent by individual legislators.

The Committee asked its legal staff to advise the members of any major issues pertaining to administrative rules and remained open to the possibility of any issues raised by the public regarding administrative rules. The legal counsel for this interim was Greg Petesch, Chief Legal Counsel of the Legislative Services Division. He reported to the Committee that the DPHHS had accepted all of his comments in his rule reviews. At the August 27, 2004, meeting, he reported a significant administrative rule issue considered by the Committee regarding three rules on the substantiation of child abuse. He determined that the DPHHS did not have sufficient statutory authority to create levels of substantiation and could create only levels of response. There is also no statutory authority to defer substantiation or to not disclose a substantiated report in a blanket exclusion as the rule attempts to engraft conditions on a disclosure that were not contemplated by the Legislature. The Committee supported the general concept behind the rules as proposed, but asked the DPHHS to accept the Committee legal counsel's comments and to make the necessary changes to the rules prior to adoption. The Committee requested that if the DPHHS was unable to do so, statutory authority should be sought by the DPHHS and the rules should be abandoned.

Monitoring and Program Evaluation

In its role of monitoring the DPHHS, the Committee received standing reports regularly from the DPHHS administration:

- Gail Gray, Director, gave a regular report on budget issues, Medicaid and TANF, Medicaid redesign, and recent events.
- The Child and Family Services Division Administrator Shirley K. Brown participated in the Committee meetings on the HJR 3 study.
- The Human and Community Services Division Administrator Hank Hudson provided regular reports on the TANF block grant, maintenance of effort, and unexpended funds.

The Mental Health Ombudsman, in a regular report to the Committee, expressed concern regarding access to information at the DPHHS that was needed to perform ombudsman functions. Initially, it appeared to be a Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) issue, but upon further investigation, there were also issues with the Medicaid information system access that were raised because of a recent Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services (CMS) audit. The Committee directed its staff to prepare draft legislation for discussion at the June meeting to deal with the HIPAA issue, the CMS issue, and other confidentiality issues. At the June 29, 2004, meeting, the Committee submitted an official bill draft request (LC0144) on access to information and confidentiality. At the August 27, 2004, meeting, the Ombudsman informed the Committee that the internal DPHHS issues would be handled between the DPHHS and the Ombudsman (attached to the Governor’s Office) through a Memorandum of Understanding. However, the Committee believed that there was more to the bill than would be covered by the memorandum and adopted an amended bill draft. The Committee included language in the bill to provide greater legal basis for access to the Medicaid database. However, the Committee was aware that access to the Medicaid database would probably not be granted by the DPHHS or the CMS and that the DPHHS internal processes would allow the information to be sent to the Ombudsman on a timely basis after patient authorization was received.

Legislative Fiscal Division Staff Reports - Pat Gervais and Lois Steinbeck, Senior Fiscal Analysts, provided regular reports to the Committee on issues that were of concern to the Legislative Finance Committee regarding the DPHHS, including Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), Medicaid redesign and the Mental Health Services Plan, the settlement of the Travis D. litigation and its potential cross-system impacts and implications, emerging issues in the developmental disabilities program, and revisiting the definition of Medicaid managed care.
At the Committee’s final meeting on August 27, 2004, the members heard of the recent efforts by the DPHHS Public Health and Safety Division regarding the public health statutes review. Dr. Larry Gostin of The Center for Law and the Public’s Health at Georgetown and Johns Hopkins Universities has been working with the DPHHS and has made a comparison of Montana's public health statutes, many of which are over 60 years old, to the Model Public Health Law. A DPHHS bill draft was prepared based on that effort, and the public health community will be deciding how many of the recommendations to bring forward to the 2005 Legislative Session. The recommendations are in five basic areas: defining a mission statement, defining public health powers, defining standards for conditions of public health importance, codifying due process protections for citizens in public health emergencies, and providing a clear understanding of responsibilities for planning and preparedness for any kind of emergency. The Committee encouraged the DPHHS to bring forward a bill covering all five areas of concern for debate before the Legislature.

In order to prepare for the 59th Legislative Session, the Committee heard overviews of the DPHHS Executive Planning Process legislative proposals and the Committee requested the agency bill drafts on behalf of the DPHHS at the June 29 and the August 27, 2004, meetings based on a cursory overview of concepts. (See Appendix C.) The review and the request processes do not indicate approval of any of the proposed concepts, only an administrative courtesy to expedite bill drafting.

The Committee received information and presentations on the following activities:

• The Committee received regular listings of DPHHS legislative audit reports completed by the Legislative Audit Division. A report was received in January 2004 on the recent financial compliance audit and information system audit. The DPHHS had improved its system controls since the previous audit.

• In January 2004, the Committee received an update on mental health issues:
(1) The Montana Children's Initiative Provider Association reported on the work of the multiagency children's initiative (i.e., high-cost kids study) and the progress made in children's mental health (Senate Bill No. 454, Ch. 416, L. 2001, and Senate Bill No. 94, Ch. 118, L. 2003). The initiative concentrated on children in the custody of the Child and Family Services Division, and the Committee was provided an executive summary in which phase one of the initiative was discussed and the objectives for phases two and three were outlined.

(2) The Committee received a report on the "new" DPHHS division that has combined children's mental health and Medicaid programs. The Legislature had given numerous directives to the DPHHS that the new division administrator was attempting to rectify. Senate Bill No. 347 (Ch. 602, L. 2003) directed the DPHHS to address both the child and adult mental health systems in its plan, but House Bill No. 2, the general appropriations act, incorporated department recommendations to separate the administration of children's mental health programs from the division that administers adult mental health programs. The new Child and Adult Health Resources Division will pursue the systems of care as provided in Senate Bill No. 94 (Ch. 118, L. 2003) and ask the 2005 Legislature to address the language from Senate Bill No. 347 and remove the requirement for planning children's services from the service area authority concept for adult mental health.

(3) The Committee received reports on requirements of Senate Bill No. 347 from the DPHHS Addictive and Mental Disorders Division (see next item).

- The Addictive and Mental Disorders Division was required by Senate Bill No. 347 to develop a plan and report to the Committee by January 31, 2004, on the transition to the administration of the delivery of public mental health services by service area authorities (SAA). The DPHHS presented its SAA Implementation Plan to the Committee members. The DPHHS took a different tack and is not expecting the SAAs to accept any risk at this point. The Central Region SAA planning group is the most active and furthest ahead. They were seeking their nonprofit status in early 2004.

• Senate Bill No. 347 required the DPHHS by June 1, 2004, to define the role of the existing community mental health centers as a part of the transition plan. If the role includes any special designation, the DPHHS shall define the special designation and the reasons for any special designation. The DPHHS reported to the Committee at its June 2004 meeting that the DPHHS was not seeking any special designation, but was continuing the dialogue with community mental health centers, county commissioners, and other mental health providers and stated that there may be a proposal brought to the next Legislature by others.

• At the June 29, 2004, meeting, the Committee received a comprehensive overview of the results of the State Health Planning Grant that studied the issue of the uninsured in the state of Montana. The DPHHS contracted with the University of Montana’s Bureau of Business and Economic Research to conduct two surveys: the Montana Household and the Montana Employer surveys. The contractor also collected additional information through focus groups and key informant interviews. The results reported that overall 19% of Montanans, or approximately 173,000 people, were uninsured at the time of the 2003 Montana Household Survey. Health insurance rates vary considerably by age. The survey found that children in Montana who are 18 years of age and younger have an uninsured rate of 17%. For young adults between the ages of 19 and 25 years, the uninsured rate is 39%. The age group of 26 to 49 year olds has a 24% uninsured rate, while older Montanans between the ages of 50 and 64 have an uninsured rate of 14%. (Montanans 65 years of age and older receive health coverage under the federal Medicare program.)

The State Health Planning Grant Steering Committee made recommendations to DPHHS ranging from those with no significant fiscal impact, such as recommending that proof of insurance be required for full-time students attending units in the Montana University System, to those requiring state funding, such as fully enrolling those eligible for Medicaid and CHIP, increasing CHIP eligibility to up to 200% of the federal poverty level, and exploring a prescription drug benefit. Several recommendations such as supporting the health insurance flexibility and accountability waiver concert were forwarded to the DPHHS Public Health Care Advisory Council (see pages 9-10).

Emerging Issues

Treatment courts. The Committee heard regularly about treatment courts, also called drug courts or problem-solving courts, as a relevant topic in both interim studies on representation of parents in child abuse and neglect proceedings (HJR 3) and in drug abuse prevention, intervention, treatment, and control (SJR 11). Some Committee members had attended treatment court proceedings to observe and learn. Treatment courts have been started across the state by District Court Judges and tribal and local governments and have met with great success. There is no statutory authority necessary for these alternative problem-solving courts because the Montana indeterminate sentencing structure allows for sufficient judicial discretion.

There is no specific state funding for treatment courts either; although funds for public defenders, treatment, and other public services have been accessed by the treatment teams. Many treatment courts have been funded through federal startup grants and county funds and are reaching a point where they may need to request state funding. There is a treatment court coalition of programs across the state including family treatment courts that deal with child abuse and neglect or dependency cases, juvenile drug courts, tribal youth wellness courts, adult criminal drug court, and a mental health court (see page 20). The Montana Board of Crime Control is assisting the coalition and has applied for a federal statewide planning grant. Although there are no legislative proposals forthcoming from the coalition, the Judiciary, or the Committee at this time, there is great interest in and support for their efforts.

Testimony indicated that because of the potential savings in public funds through programs that reunite parents and children, treat addictions, and reduce or prevent incarceration, there is a need for coordination of funding for treatment courts from the various areas that are impacted. Also, there is need for a nonadversarial, comprehensive collaboration among systems: judiciary, child welfare, treatment, and community representatives. Treatment court programs use intense supervision and have lower that recidivism compared to average recidivism. National research indicated that recidivism in some programs can be as low as 10%, with an average of 28%, compared to a recidivism rate of 48% for offenders processed through the regular court system. Substance abuse cases can cost approximately $20,000 to $50,000 for each case compared to treatment courts cost of $2,500 to $4,000 per case.

TANF benefit cut and surplus. In August of 2003, the DPHHS instituted a cut in the TANF benefits based on proposals to and decisions made by the 58th Legislature (2003). Advocates for TANF beneficiaries and DPHHS staff kept this issue in front of the Committee at each meeting. In January of 2004, testimony was received that the TANF benefit cuts were having a negative impact on very vulnerable families, including a rise in demand for services from homeless shelters, food banks, and local groups that provide assistance, such as Energy Share and the Low-Income Energy Assistance Program. Advocates testified that housing is critical to success, that the cuts are resulting in some unsafe living conditions, and that stresses on clients' mental health

---

3 Testimony received from Ellen Greenwood, Missoula, at the August 27, 2004, Committee meeting (minutes available).
are being seen. Advocates commented that public assistance is often used to extricate a victim from domestic violence and that finances are often used by abusers to control the victim in a domestic violence situation. TANF benefit changes make it harder to get benefits and be self-sufficient enough to find a safe domestic situation. Advocates wanted the DPHHS to use some of the surplus that has been saved through cuts and the lower caseload numbers, as well as the performance bonus that the DPHHS received from the federal government. The DPHHS staff said that it had to cut the amount of the benefits or risk more dramatic cuts later when the money ran out. DPHHS staff also reported that placing the additional money in childcare assistance is the area that the DPHHS and the Legislature decided to concentrate on.

In April 2004, the DPHHS provided background information regarding the TANF benefit cut:

- During the 2003 Legislature, it became apparent that the TANF caseload benefit level would become nonsustainable within the block grant and that a lack of childcare funding was requiring that people who wanted to work would be placed on a waiting list for childcare assistance.
- In August 2003, the Executive Branch decided to reduce the TANF benefit level by approximately 26% and to move $3 million of the savings into the childcare program.

Legislators and DPHHS staff hoped that the availability of childcare would discourage some of the growth in the TANF caseload and that the caseload would eventually balance out at a sustainable level. The TANF caseload, through February of 2004, dropped and stabilized. The DPHHS staff believed that from a public policy perspective, the program had enough money to provide childcare with no waiting list and that the caseload had stabilized at a sustainable level. The DPHHS recognized that the reduction did create hardships for people, which prompted a TANF recipient survey conducted by MSU-Billings (Floyd, 2004).

- The research indicated that those who left the TANF program were better off than those who stayed on. Those who left TANF worked more hours, had a greater increase in earnings, and reported fewer difficulties from the reductions in benefits.

- The people with fewer options and with more difficulties and barriers stayed in the program and continue to report difficulties paying utility bills and affording food and rent, etc.
- Two groups were contacted: 175 people who were on TANF when the benefit was reduced and who were still on TANF a month after the reductions and another group of 176 people who, when their benefits were reduced, dropped out of the TANF program.

Advocates provided public comment regarding the TANF survey:

- The reduction in TANF benefits affected 2,000 children.
- Families are breaking up because they can't afford to stay together, particularly single mothers and their children.
- Domestic violence is a factor in at least 30% of the TANF caseload. There is something fundamentally flawed in this survey when it says that none of the people went on TANF due to domestic violence. It is very unlikely that individuals would be willing to share this type of information with a stranger on the phone. When benefits are reduced, options are reduced as well.
- Representatives from Women's Opportunity and Resource Development (WORD), Missoula, asked the Committee to ask the DPHHS if there are other resources that could be used, and the request had not yet been responded to. WORD would like to see the surplus, the performance bonus, and the fiscal stimulus money considered as possible funding sources to restore the benefit.
- WORD had also requested that the DPHHS use advocates to conduct the TANF survey and was disappointed by the survey results because the use of advocates would have given a very different picture.
• The methodology of the survey is questionable. WORD feels that a 22% response rate is not acceptable to reflect the circumstances of all TANF recipients.
• The people able to be reached by telephone are the more employable people, so no one should be surprised by the results (113 disconnected telephones).
• The employment and wages information does not indicate a significant change from before the benefit cut.
• The wording of the actual survey would prevent most respondents from being truthful regarding any questionable activity. Advocates would have been able to draw out more accurate information.
• At the same time that the TANF benefit was cut, the level of child poverty increased in the state. The goal of the program should be to create sustainability in children’s lives.
• Representatives from Working for Equality and Economic Liberation (WEEL) believe it is good public policy to invest in children. A lower TANF caseload reflects numbers of people served, mainly children. The benefit cut has not reduced poverty and is no solution.
• The Advisory Council for Public Assistance urged that the TANF ending fund balance of $17.5 million, as indicated in the block grant analysis from the DPHHS, be used to alleviate the problems.

At the Committee’s August 27, 2004, final meeting, advocates were still concerned that there had been no proposals to use the approximate $22 million surplus to increase the TANF benefit and that the areas that the DPHHS was targeting for additional money were not specifically assisting the TANF-eligible families and children (additional money to food banks would be for anyone, not just TANF-eligible individuals). They noted that the Census Bureau reported that poverty in Montana is higher in 2003 than 2002, especially among children in single-parent households. The TANF rolls are decreasing at a time when poverty is increasing. The advocates wanted additional funding in housing assistance programs and provided information from a successful program operated in Missoula called homeWORD and invited the Committee to the opening of housing for low-income people in Billings.

The DPHHS responded that it has not finished developing its proposals. The DPHHS agreed that housing was key in many areas and that it needed attention. The DPHHS was looking at allocating more money for training and childcare needs and noted that food banks need additional support to assist the higher numbers of individuals in need. The DPHHS will be proposing a small ($1-2 million) increase in benefits to the Governor. They are working with their advisory group looking at incentives for GED, etc. The Director agreed that a TANF reserve of $10 million to $12 million was not an unrealistic number. The Director also cautioned that a decrease in the federal matching rate (FMAP) could also reduce the amount available for the TANF program (a 1% decrease in FMAP is over $5 million). A Committee member commented that the economy was not as strong in 2003 as before and that the TANF decrease did not cause the higher poverty levels.

CHIP contract and reserves. At the August 27, 2004, meeting, the Committee inquired about issues that had recently been raised about the state CHIP program. There is a concern regarding the disparity between the percentage of administrative costs that federal law allows for a state CHIP program and the amount of administrative costs that are currently allowed in the contract with Blue Cross Blue Shield. Other concerns regard the amount of reserves that has been retained by Blue Cross Blue Shield, especially in light of the last premium increase granted. There is also a concern over the portion of CHIP money that was used to fund the Caring Program for Children. The DPHHS reported that they were in formal negotiations with Blue Cross Blue Shield over the contract. The DPHHS proposed that it receive a portion of the money held in reserve, discussed the percentage of administrative costs, and is addressing proposals by Blue Cross Blue Shield regarding the need for premium increases. The DPHHS believes that Blue Cross Blue Shield is seriously considering assisting the DPHHS in achieving the departmental goals.

TANF, food stamps, and drug offenders. At the April 2004 meeting, Minkie Medora of the Montana Food Policy Council requested a repeal of the exclusion in 53-4-231, MCA, that prohibits drug offenders from receiving food stamps and TANF benefits--an exclusion that was implemented after federal welfare reform in 1996. The repeal of the exclusion had been a recommendation from the Task Force on Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Policy and had not been successful. The Committee worked on draft legislation, patterned after the 2001 legislation (SB 77, as introduced), that was less restrictive but maintains some conditions for receipt of benefits and ensures that all offenders under supervision, not only on probation and parole, would be included. An amended final bill draft (LC0031) was approved at the August 2004 meeting. (See staff report, "Public Assistance Benefits and Felony Offenders", March 2004, on file).

At the January 2004 meeting, the American Massage Therapy Association, Montana Chapter, spoke to the Committee about exploring the option of bringing a new proposal regarding licensure before the next Legislature. There was an unsuccessful attempt in 2003, and the members were working hard with all parties to resolve differences before they would bring a proposal forward.

The National Association of Social Workers, Montana Chapter, came before the Committee with information about a multitiered licensure bill that would be proposed in the 2005 Legislative Session. The bill would add the responsibilities to the current board that licenses professional clinical social workers and would add licenses for a bachelor-level social worker and a master’s-level social worker in nonclinical settings. (This has potential impact on the Child and Family Services Division, which has "community social workers" for child protective services who are not required by law or the DPHHS to be licensed.)

Legislative priorities that will be brought to the 2005 Legislature by various advocacy groups include:

• addressing the significant negative impact of the August 2003 TANF benefit cuts and restoration of TANF benefits;
• legislation regarding payday loans and protection from predatory lending for vulnerable families;
• providing a fair share tax menu from the Montana Fair Share Network;
• securing a funding source for the At-Home Infant Care Program;
• securing funding for childcare payment assistance and children's health care services for low-income working families;
• seeking enhanced authority for DPHHS to ensure that the childcare licensing entity can close illegally operating facilities; and
• seeking support for a school readiness or prekindergarten initiative.

The DPHHS brought the issue of unregulated youth residential facilities or programs to the Committee's attention. Many of these programs are privately funded programs for challenging youth, and many have a wilderness component. Currently, unless an "outdoor behavioral program" accepts public funds, Montana does not require the program to be licensed (HB 524, Ch. 348, L. 2003, at 50-5-220, MCA). The Committee received a written report from the DPHHS entitled, "Unregulated Youth Residential Care Programs In Montana" outlining the issue and was apprised of a listening tour that DPHHS representatives held in Great Falls and Kalispell in July 2004. Representatives from many of the programs provided public comment and opposed mandatory licensure at this time, but supported mandatory registration. They wanted to be able to participate in any study to develop licensure and to make sure that any licensure is appropriate to the various types of programs that exist and is not overly cumbersome. The industry stated that there was a significant economic impact in the state in a nonextractive industry that the state would not want to lose.

The DPHHS had requested a placeholder for potential legislation (LC0289) and proposed that they bring mandatory registration forward for the 2005 Legislature to consider. In the bill, the DPHHS staff proposes to incorporate a study for mandatory licensure for the 2007 Legislature. The Committee expressed concern that these youth are a vulnerable population and that the youth need to be protected. However, the Committee was reluctant to pursue mandatory licensure at this time. Many other states have licensure and many of the services that these programs provide must already be licensed. An additional impact to be considered is the impact on some public school districts as many of these youth attend the public schools. Most youth are from out-of-state, and their parents may not contributing tuition to the schools. The need to balance a youth's right to (and need for) a quality education in Montana with out-of-state parents’ responsibility to participate in the costs means that tuition arrangements or other ways to reimburse the state should be explored.
CHAPTER TWO

Committee Interim Study: HJR 3

House Joint Resolution No. 3 - A Joint Resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Montana requesting an interim committee study to examine child abuse and neglect proceedings in order to determine how to provide representation for indigent families and to determine the appropriate earliest opportunity.

This resolution had been requested by the 2001-2002 Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Interim Committee in response to recommendations by DPHHS staff and a legislative audit report. The Legislative Council assigned this study to the Committee. The Committee staff provided a history and a proposed study outline at its August 22, 2003, meeting. The DPHHS provided information that there was great statewide variation in the appointment of counsel for parents in child abuse and neglect proceedings.

As of January 2003, of 22 judicial districts in Montana, judges in:

- seven Judicial Districts appoint parental representation at the initiation of a child abuse and neglect proceeding;
- another seven Judicial Districts appoint representation at the time of termination of parental rights, as required by statute, (there is an exception to this statute under the Indian Child Welfare Act, which requires parental representation to be appointed at the onset of proceedings);
- two Judicial Districts provide counsel at adjudication and one district provide counsel on a case-by-case basis; and
- five Judicial Districts are judges in multicounty jurisdictions so it depends on which county a parent lives in as to when parental representation is Five of the nine most populated counties appoint at initiation (Yellowstone, Missoula, Lewis and Clark, Gallatin, and Ravalli Counties) and Cascade County appoints on a case-by-case basis.

At its October 31, 2003, meeting, the Committee received a background report and adopted a study plan. The study plan included information on the background and history of this issue, a description of the child abuse and neglect proceedings process, and legal requirements.

The Committee also received a presentation on the Court Appointed Special Advocate/ Guardian Ad Litem (CASA/GAL) programs in Montana. There are various models represented across the state, but a guardian ad litem is required by state and federal law to be provided for each child alleged to be abused or neglected. Court-appointed special advocates are often appointed as guardians ad litem. Court-appointed special advocates are volunteers who are appointed by the District Court Judge to follow a child throughout the proceedings, to conduct investigations, and to make recommendations to the court.

At its January 23, 2004, meeting, the Committee looked at the child abuse and neglect and court proceedings in greater depth. The Committee received information on all of the treatment courts, or problem-solving courts, in Montana (see also page 17). At that time, there were Youth Drug Courts in Missoula and Superior, the Bozeman Adult Drug Court, the Yellowstone County Family Treatment Drug Court, Lewistown and Miles City Family Treatment Courts, and Youth Wellness Courts at the Fort Peck, Northern Cheyenne, and Blackfeet Reservations.

Evaluation studies are being conducted by Brenda Roche, Ph.D., who shared information on the success of the various programs with the Committee. Data from the Yellowstone County Family Treatment Drug Court indicated that employment of the participants has risen from 38.5% to 81.8% at the 12-month followup. The participants with no substance abuse in the last month at the 12-month followup was also 81.8%, up from a mere 1% at intake. Child outcome data was measured by the "time in care" for children. The Yellowstone County Family Treatment Drug Court's child participants averaged 340 days in care compared to a control group who experienced an average of 1,065 days in care. The number of children reunified with their parents was 39.5% in the program compared to the comparison group's rate of 20.6%.4

Connie Camino, the public defender who participates on the Yellowstone County Family Treatment Drug Court Team, testified that the parents involved in these processes are generally very young, poorly educated, angry, distrusting, afraid, and in need of an advocate. Judges are cautious, and children are frequently removed from the home, exacerbating the parent's negative experience in the system. Many parents can regain custody of their children with proper assistance and services that are provided through the drug court and that otherwise may not be available outside of the drug court. Yellowstone County contracts with five private attorneys to represent all parents in child abuse and neglect proceedings, and they are appointed at the initial proceedings. One of the public defenders, Connie Camino, handles the cases involved in the treatment drug court.

The committee received information on the CasCo Project sponsored by the Cascade County Law Clinic. The project provides parent education to parents who have had child abuse and neglect proceedings initiated against them. The public defender and county attorney offices refer parents to the clinic staff who assists parents in understanding what is happening to them and in fulfilling the necessary steps to reunification with their children. If a parent appears to be unsuccessful and heading toward the termination of parental rights, this program refers the parent to the public defender for representation.

---

4Other outcome data is available in the January 23, 2004, Committee Minutes, Exhibit #4.

The Committee also learned about the Child Protection Unit in the Department of Justice that assists county attorneys, upon request, in the prosecution of child abuse and neglect cases that are complex. The unit was thought to be a possible model for a special unit of defense attorneys who could assist public defenders across the state in providing effective counsel to parents. Testimony indicated that the Child Protection Unit was in full support of having attorneys appointed for parents from the outset and that there was no downside. The Committee received a legal analysis from Committee counsel on the Supreme Court's rulings on parental rights.

The Committee also received testimony and other information that supported the concept of early and quality representation for parents in child abuse and neglect proceedings. The treatment courts provided defense counsel at the outset and found that there was a better understanding between all parties when the parents understood their rights and their responsibilities in the system. The purpose of child protective services is to protect the best interests of the child. Quicker resolution protects the best interests of the child, either through family reunification or by providing a permanent home for the child after termination of parental rights.

The Committee also heard from parents who believed strongly that not only an earlier assignment of a public defender, but also more effective counsel, would have helped them to reunify their family and to protect their rights. The Committee received public testimony at each meeting from concerned citizens who have had negative experiences in the child protective services system. Many offered to allow the members access to their confidential files. Many also requested an investigation into the DPHHS's practices. Although the Committee's authority did not extend into this area, they accepted public comment at every meeting and considered the information in their deliberations.
The House Joint Resolution No. 3 study occurred concurrently with a study by the Law and Justice Interim Committee on the advisability of establishing a statewide system of public defense for the indigent. Because the issue of representation for parents in child abuse and neglect proceedings is a subset of a wider indigent defense issue, the Children and Families Interim Committee forwarded its recommendations to the Law and Justice Interim Committee in April 2004 for incorporation into any recommendations for or legislation establishing a statewide indigent defense system. (See Appendix D.) The Committee’s primary recommendations were:

- that the Law and Justice Interim Committee consider statutory changes to require appointment of legal counsel for all parents, guardians, or those with legal custody who are involved in child abuse and neglect proceedings that may result in removal or placement of a child or termination of parental rights as a part of that Committee’s consideration in the development of a public defender system in the state; and

- that the Law and Justice Interim Committee consider including a family law specialist in the public defender system to assist public defenders in difficult cases and consider a background or expertise in family law for those who are assigned these cases in a public defender system.

At the June 29, 2004, meeting of the Committee, the Law and Justice Interim Committee staff reported that a Law and Justice subcommittee:

- had formed a recommendation to provide for appointment of counsel at the beginning of any proceeding that may result in the termination of parental rights;

- was considering how to provide for a state family law specialist, possibly in the form of a Chief Public Defender for the state who would have authority to assign or hire specialty attorneys for certain cases;

- had taken no action on requesting additional data from the State Court Administrator or the DPHHS on numbers of parents involved;

- was working on a statutory definition of indigency;
was making a consideration that even if a family is not economically indigent, there may be other reasons why counsel may need to be assigned;

• agreed that the guardian ad litem program should stay at the Court Administrator's Office; and

• intended to include as a state cost public defense participation in the drug court treatment teams.

By August 2004, the Law and Justice Interim Committee had incorporated a requirement for parents to receive representation early in the process as recommended in the second discussion draft (August 30, 2004) of LC0214 and incorporated additional Committee recommendations that the court-appointed special advocate and guardian ad litem program continue to be administered through the State Court Administrator's Office and that public defender participation on drug court teams be an allowable state expense. An attorney who is both appointed as a public defender and wishes to serve as a court-appointed special advocate may do so if there is no conflict of interest.

The Committee also requested a stand-alone bill (LC0296) for the recommendations for counsel to be appointed for parents in the initial proceedings in a child abuse and neglect case that parallels the Law and Justice Interim Committee bill as a backup in the event that the statewide public defender system legislation fails or relevant sections are deleted.
CHAPTER THREE

Committee Interim Study: SJR 11

Senate Joint Resolution No. 11 - A Joint Resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Montana to request a study of the problems of alcohol and drug abuse and of prevention, early intervention, and treatment.

This study was intended to continue the work that had been initiated in 2001 by the Governor and the Attorney General with the Task Force on Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Control Policy (ATOD) and was assigned to the Committee by the Legislative Council.

The Committee adopted the proposed study plan at its August 22, 2003, meeting and received informational reports from the Prevention Resource Center, the Interagency Coordinating Council, and the DPHHS Addictive and Mental Disorders Division on the current programs in the state for prevention and treatment.

In October of 2003, the Committee dedicated a full-day meeting to this study. Information was presented by representatives from various programs and individuals with unique perspectives on prevention, treatment, the courts, law enforcement, and corrections. The Committee learned about the brain and how it reacts to addictive drugs and heard testimony from two recovering addicts. The Committee learned about the co-occurring disorders of mental illness and addiction and that the DPHHS had formed a Co-occurring Disorders Task Force and applied for a grant for a pilot program on co-occurring disorders. The Committee considered seven policy areas that had been recommended by the former ATOD Task Force: youth access and consumption, 5 Ibid, footnote #2.

---

prevention leadership and investment, a responsible treatment system, combating DUI, targeting meth, coordinated statewide leadership, and building prevention, treatment, and justice.

The Committee selected "Coordinated Statewide Leadership" as its first priority to tackle in the area of alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use. The members saw this issue as foundational and one that would positively affect all other areas. The Committee identified numerous issues related to establishing coordinated statewide leadership, including:

- understanding the Interagency Coordinating Council on Prevention (ICC);
- the lack of funding for infrastructure and coordination requiring funding authority;
- the ineffective unified budget;
- the need for definition in scope of responsibility;
- the need for commitment from state agencies;
- a desire to avoid duplication and the need to coordinate functions;
- a requirement to use evidence-based approaches; and
- a requirement that infrastructure include data gathering and establishing and maintaining a database.

The Committee then identified the need for a "body" to accomplish budgeting and integration of programs towards the ultimate goal of helping children become healthy adults. The Committee decided that a "body" would need a designated leader.

For the January 2004 meeting, the Committee received information on a range of prevention programs in the DPHHS, including public health prevention programs in the Public Health and Safety Division, such as the Tobacco Use Prevention Program, and a tobacco prevention program in the Addictive and Mental Disorders Division. If compliance rates in sales of tobacco to underage youth are not sufficient, Montana’s federal Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment Block Grant could be compromised. There was concern that the two tobacco prevention programs were not communicating or coordinating closely.

The Committee received public comment from substance abuse treatment providers on the Committee’s coordinated statewide leadership efforts. There was concern about splitting current funding and placing a position in the Governor’s Office that is subject to frequent change.

The Committee received information about the Yellowstone County Family Treatment Drug Court and its success at attaining permanency for children, including treating addicted parents and reuniting families when possible. The effectiveness of the treatment drug court is proven to be better than regular courts, and although some costs may be higher in the case management and operational elements initially, they save far more money in other systems, such as the child abuse and neglect system and foster care, and in prison and other incarceration costs.

For the January 2004 meeting, staff prepared "Preliminary Proposals to Address Coordinated Statewide Leadership in Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Prevention, Treatment, and Control". The proposals were preliminary in nature as all parties had not been consulted. These proposals were reviewed by the Committee and found to be more ambitious than the Committee desired. The Committee's comments for additional or refined proposals included:

- keeping any proposal small;
- looking at existing funding sources such as tobacco money or existing federal grants;
- keeping a proposal concentrated on prevention and treatment;
- creating a chief prevention officer, but using existing programs, individuals, or committees;
- requiring appointment of the prevention officer by the Governor; and
- using data systems between agencies in a compatible way to explore low-cost solutions.

The Committee had received information on a draft proposal to use the Montana Board of Crime Control (MBCC) as an existing board that could be used for Coordinated Drug Policy Leadership. The proposal included adding members to the Board of Crime Control, repealing the ICC, and transferring the Prevention Resource Center to a Drug Policy Resource Center. The Committee also received encouragement to direct staff to work with DPHHS division administrators on a proposal to coordinate prevention programs.

At the April 29, 2004, meeting, the Committee received technical assistance from the National Conference of State Legislatures funded by the federal Center for Substance Abuse Treatment on issues related to drug courts, co-occurring disorders, and funding for drug treatment.\textsuperscript{6}

Dr. A.J. Ernst, Co-Occurring Disorders Program Manager, State of Texas, oversees both the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation (TDMHMR) and the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (TCADA). He reviewed the history, evolution, and components of the Texas model including information on:

- co-occurring service delivery history and significant factors;
- 1996 TDMHMR and TCADA Dual Disorders Initiative Funding and Outcomes;
- System Changes - "No Wrong Door" Mainstream Integrated Services features;
- performance partnerships and integrated initiatives; and
- Texas Administrative Code: Standards for Services to Persons With Co-Occurring Disorders, Chapter 411, Subchapter N.

\textsuperscript{6}Copies of all of the PowerPoint presentations are available and in the Committee Minutes.
Bridget Kelly, B.A., CADC, CCJAP, from Treatment Alternatives for Safe Communities, presented information on drug courts: "What Works: Creating a Statewide and Collaborative Drug Court Model". She provided information on:

- an overview of drug courts;
- the drug court team and the role of the defense counsel;
- the challenges of drug-involved offenders;
- the benefits of a statewide drug court system;
- the necessary steps to accomplish a statewide drug court system;
- the role and goals of a statewide drug court system;
- case supervision versus clinical case management;
- foundations for effective systems;
- critical justice and treatment principles;
- the value of independent case management; and
- funding resource opportunities: existing state, county, city, and federal sources.

Doug Allen, Interim Director, Washington State Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse, provided information on how Washington State funds drug courts and the Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse.

- Washington utilizes both federal and state funds to support the drug courts. The funds are designated for treatment only. The only exceptions made are for transportation and child care costs.
- There are 14 drug courts in the state, and the annual average cost per client is approximately $3,500.
- Washington funds treatment only for those individuals who are at 200% or less of the poverty level. Approximately one of every four persons-in-need is served.

Suzanne Gelber, SGR Health Ltd. and The Avisa Group, explained that treatment for substance abuse is largely funded by public money and is an unusual component of health care for that fact. Ms. Gelber provided information on various funding streams and other revenue sources, the importance of diversification of funds, nonrevenue strategies, and infrastructure improvements that are needed to pursue diversified funding. She informed the Committee of the methamphetamine resources and research available at the National Institute on Drug Abuse and the National Institutes for Health.

The Committee also received an overview of Montana’s Chemical Dependency Bureau of DPHHS from the newly appointed bureau chief, Joan Cassidy. Presentations were also provided on the Recovery Houses in Bozeman from Shelley Johnson and in Livingston from Joan McCullough. Presentations on prevention issues were received from Boni Braunbeck of the Montana Alliance of Boys and Girls Clubs, from John Oliphant, Government Affairs Director of the Boys and Girls Clubs of America, and from Gary Pfister on the 21st Century Learning (afterschool) Program administered by the Montana Office of Public Instruction.

The Committee continued their work on the Coordinated Statewide Leadership issue. Committee staff had consulted with the MBCC, the ICC, and the DPHHS division administrators on both the preliminary proposals and the MBCC proposal. The results from these meetings were as follows:

- There was interest, but no commitment either way, from the MBCC.
- The ICC members expressed resistance to the repeal of the ICC and to moving of the functions of the ICC to the MBCC as it may not allow or may discourage participation from some prevention groups because the law enforcement perspective of the MBCC would not encompass all types of prevention efforts in the state because of the law enforcement perspective.
- The DPHHS division administrators received the preliminary and MBCC proposals, but had not responded. There had been discussion that the public health system sees prevention as one of its major areas and was worried about duplication of efforts.

• There were concerns that by moving the ICC and the Prevention Resource Center to the MBCC, the MBCC would focus mainly on substance use and abuse and other aspects of prevention, such as public health would not be integrated any longer.

In addition, the DPHHS was informed that the VISTA program could no longer subsidize the efforts of the ICC or the Prevention Resource Center.

The Committee provided direction to its staff to explore a holistic prevention approach in drafting two bills for discussion purposes. One proposal would use the MBCC as the appropriate vehicle and the other proposal would use the existing structure of the ICC to provide greater statewide coordination and leadership in prevention and treatment. As the proposals became formalized in draft legislation, the Committee anticipated additional comments to assist in the development of final recommendations.

At the June 2004 meeting, the Committee received information from the Environmental Quality Council (EQC) staff on the EQC effort regarding the issue of Methamphetamine Cleanup Standards and a bill draft that the EQC was considering. The draft applied to meth cleanup of indoor property only (Department of Environmental Quality is responsible for outdoor and other indoor cleanup regulation) and adopted the Washington State standard of 1 microgram of meth residue per 100 square centimeters of surface. The draft authorizes the DPHHS to establish training and certification programs for cleanup companies, which would include interstate reciprocity, and provides that certified cleanup is voluntary, that the property owner must notify future occupants if property was not cleaned by an approved process, which should involve local health departments if possible, and that the certification and training was proposed to be at no or minimal cost to the state.\(^7\)

\[^7\text{In September 2004, the EQC declined to adopt the draft bill as a committee bill on a 7-7 vote.}\]
The Committee also received an update from Bill Slaughter, Director of the Department of Corrections, on correctional substance abuse treatment programs. He provided information on the institutional populations and provided a status report on the former Eastern Montana Human Services Center (also known as Eastmont) facility in Glendive. The Department of Corrections assumed ownership of the building after DPHHS closed the facility. Approximately 40 DUI offenders would be treated at Eastmont in a therapeutic community model. Many of the offenders sent to the facility will be women or will be from eastern Montana. Mr. Slaughter is also working with DPHHS on "building bridges" for felony offenders once they are released from prison. The Department of Corrections will be proposing a 40-bed methamphetamine treatment center modeled after the Warm Springs Addiction Treatment and Change, or WATCh, program and the efforts are estimated to be cost-neutral as a result of shifting the various populations.

At the June 2004 meeting, Committee staff reported on the Coordinated Statewide Leadership proposals that staff had worked with the ICC and reported that there was no support for the proposed legislation from ICC members. The proposal was criticized for being too broad in its attempts to be "holistic". However, the ICC came up with five suggestions:

- the elimination of the ICC by the 2005 Legislature or the elimination of the unified budget requirement;
- looking at public and private entities currently involved in the ICC to write a report on existing prevention activities and annually commit to specific steps to improve prevention activities;
- participation by statewide elected officials from the Executive Branch and representatives from the Montana Supreme Court in an annual event to listen to and comment on the existing prevention activities reports;
- that DPHHS commits to the ongoing support of the Prevention Resource Center; and
- for the continuation of the work group that supports the ICC.
Bill Mercer, Chairman of the Montana Board of Crime Control (MBCC) and U.S. Attorney for the District of Montana, spoke to the Committee about the coordinated statewide leadership proposal. Although the MBCC did not make any formal comments on the proposal, Mr. Mercer shared his belief that the proposal had the potential to fulfill a need that has growing support for aggressive, coordinated efforts in all areas of enforcement, treatment, and education. He provided the Committee with language from the creation of the federal Office of National Drug Control Policy. He believed that the position of a drug policy coordinator needed to be a cabinet-level position to support the multiple agencies involved in combating the drug problem and to have the "bully pulpit" that the Governor's Office provides. He believed that it is important to limit the issues of coordination to prevention and treatment of substance abuse, supporting the previous decision that the Committee had made.

Based on the ICC reluctance, the ICC bill draft was not prepared. The MBCC proposal was drafted and presented to the Committee. The Committee adopted a motion to amend the proposed draft to include a chief prevention officer as a cabinet-level officer (not attached to the MBCC) who is limited to coordination of substance abuse prevention and treatment. The Committee also directed staff to draft a resolution communicating to the next Governor that the Committee and Legislature believe that drug prevention and treatment are priorities and that existing efforts at prevention, treatment, and coordination should be continued.

Methamphetamine Summit. The Governor held a "Cracking Down on Meth" Summit June 1 through 3, 2004, in Billings. Senator John Esp, Representative Edith Clark, Representative Carol Gibson, and Committee staff participated. The National Crime Prevention Council provided technical assistance and used the "Social Reconnaissance Model" of strategic planning. Breakout groups in the topical areas of child protective services, community treatment/environmental cleanup, judicial/law enforcement, media/business, prevention, and youth/courts/education met and identified problems, barriers, and solutions. The Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drug Control Policy Task Force was reconstituted and assisted in identifying the next steps. Results from the breakout groups were compiled into a survey that was sent to all participants (40% return rate). Representatives from the National Crime Prevention Council reported the results on August 25, 2004, with Representative Edith Clark and staff present, just prior to the Committee's final meeting. Jean Branscum, Policy Advisor to the Governor, reported the results to the Committee at the August 27, 2004, meeting. The cross-cutting priorities identified from all of the topical areas were to:

- establish statewide coordination mechanisms for all affected agencies and organizations;
- develop interagency training and protocols;
- launch a statewide public awareness campaign;
- survey other states for best practices;
- develop a Drug-Endangered Children (D.E.C.) Model;
- regulate the sale of precursor chemicals; and
- develop and expand the methamphetamine treatment model;

Regional breakout sessions were held at the Summit and have since resulted in regional meetings. Cascade County has held a county meth summit, and regional summits are planned for Butte in September of 2004 and Miles City in January of 2005. The establishment of local D.E.C. teams and protocols was one of the recommendations that ranked near the top at the Governor's Methamphetamine Summit, and D.E.C. training will be held in Helena in November 2004, hosted by the Montana Narcotics Officers Association and the Montana Division of Criminal Investigation. The training will be sponsored by the National Drug Endangered Children Alliance. The Governor's Office has been working toward the implementation of a Montana Meth Watch program to establish public/private partnerships to assist communities in their fight to combat methamphetamine production. Meth Watch works to curtail suspicious sales and theft of pseudoephedrine and other precursor products used in the manufacturing of methamphetamine, to increase awareness about methamphetamine, and to give local communities an effective tool in addressing the meth problem locally. Both the Committee members and the Governor’s staff agreed that protecting children is the most important thing that needs to be done.

The information reported on August 25, 2004, was discussed at the Committee’s final meeting on August 27, 2004. The Committee incorporated some of the information about statewide drug prevention and treatment coordination into their discussion and into their subsequently adopted bill drafts.

The Committee completed its work on SJR 11 and coordinated statewide leadership by finalizing the two committee bill drafts. The major recommendation was the creation of an Office of Substance Use Prevention and Treatment headed by a cabinet-level Commissioner who would be appointed by the Governor (LC0294). The second bill draft was a resolution recognizing the Executive Branch efforts at interagency cooperation and encouraging the subsequent administration with a newly elected Governor and newly appointed department directors to continue the efforts (LC0295). The Committee also directed that a letter be sent to the Governor’s Office of Budget and Program Planning requesting a review of the existing multiple advisory councils in areas related to substance abuse prevention or treatment. The Committee believed that there was a possibility of downsizing or consolidating existing advisory councils to provide resources to support a Commissioner and an Office of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment.

The resolution (LC0295) was adopted as this is an election year and in the transition to a new Executive Branch administration and department directors, the Committee was concerned that progress made over the interim may be lost in the transition. In the resolution, the Committee stated its desires:

(1) That all agencies in the Executive Branch, including those under the Governor, the Attorney General, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction work together to coordinate education, prevention, and drug control efforts to enable and provide resources to local communities to combat the ill effects of abuse of legal and illegal substances and their concomitant effects on the public health and criminal justice systems.

(2) That the new Governor support efforts to coordinate substance abuse prevention and treatment activities within and across Executive Branch agencies.

(3) That the Director of the Department of Public Health and Human Services support the efforts of the VISTA program and the Prevention Resource Center, maintain the Prevention Connection newsletter within the department, and disseminate information directly to communities.

(4) That the Director of the Department of Public Health and Human Services support a position to perform intra-agency cross-division planning and coordination for prevention activities, including the prevention of alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use and abuse, and with other public health prevention efforts, including but not limited to the prevention of child abuse, teen pregnancy, HIV/AIDS, suicide, and the retail sale of alcohol and tobacco to minors.

(5) That the Board of Crime Control grow in its efforts to coordinate its substance abuse prevention, delinquency and crime prevention, and public safety programs with those at the Department of Public Health and Human Services.

Although there is a Chemical Dependency Bureau in the Addictive and Mental Disorders Division (AMDD) of the DPHHS that concentrates on substance abuse treatment and prevention, there are numerous other prevention and treatment programs in the state related to substance abuse. AMDD administers the Community Incentive Program and the Substance Abuse and Prevention and Treatment block grant. The vast majority of the money in prevention is federal funds, and the DPHHS treatment funds are also predominantly federal.

A significant number of substance abuse and mental health treatment dollars, predominantly from the state general fund, are spent in the correctional and juvenile justice systems outside of the treatment dollars at the DPHHS. There are treatment programs at the state prisons, including the regional correctional and private prison facilities. Prerelease and other community programs provide additional treatment programs or may require access to community treatment programs. There are no standards or shared treatment protocols to ensure a transition to community services. There is not sufficient capacity in the treatment system, and there are not sufficient transition programs between the correctional and traditional treatment systems.

The intent of the Committee proposals is to coordinate programs at the highest administrative level in a single office charged with the responsibility and authority to concentrate on the "big picture". The goal is to provide a bridge between prevention and treatment programs. There is no intent to take over or to supplant existing programs, but the intent is to coordinate and maximize existing efforts and to provide a repository of information for communities to access.

The ICC’s Unified Prevention Budget shows that the substance abuse prevention budget was approximately $4.75 million in FY04, yet only $2 million of that rested with the DPHHS Addictive and Mental Disorders Division. For example in the Public Health and Safety Division, there is tobacco use prevention program and a Fetal Alcohol Syndrome program; the MBCC funds enforcing underage drinking laws, Safe and Drug Free Schools, and Title V Juvenile Delinquency Prevention funds; and the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction also receives Safe and Drug Free Schools funds.\(^8\) There are also programs in other state departments that relate to prevention and treatment of substance abuse, including Agriculture, Transportation, Military Affairs, and Environmental Quality.

In addition, at the meeting announcing the results of the Governor’s Methamphetamine

\(^8\)See the “Unified Prevention Budget of the Interagency Coordinating Council for State Prevention Programs” in the April 29, 2004, Minutes.
Summit, many other state agency representatives talked about their programs relating to methamphetamine specifically. The Montana Department of Agriculture is working with agricultural groups to develop neighborhood watch programs and is training suppliers about the precursors for methamphetamine production, including an Anhydrous Safety Program. The Department of Corrections is looking at a standard treatment model for methamphetamine treatment and working with the DPHHS on transitioning offenders back into the community more successfully. The DPHHS reiterated its intent to formalize communications between its divisions as methamphetamine abuse affects programs in multiple divisions. The Department of Environmental Quality is a signatory of the Clandestine Meth Lab Mitigation Plan with the MBCC for the environment that is exterior to physical structures. The Department of Labor and Industry must deal with the increasing frustration with drug abuse as a work force issue. Drug testing exacerbates worker shortages. The Department of Labor and Industry plans to use job training to increase awareness of the issue and the Jobs for Montana Graduates program to help with at-risk kids. The licensing boards for medical professions at the Department of Labor and Industry were identified as needing to be involved in leadership on training and identifying drug abuse and its effects on individuals, especially children. Housing is affected in many facets and a session at the statewide Housing Conference addressed drug labs and meth. An educational effort is needed for bankers, real estate agents, and other housing providers that are present in homes to recognize dangers of meth use and labs and to know about the resources available to them. Homeland Security issues in multiple departments can be used to combat drug labs and the impact of drugs in the communities. There was no single source or repository of this information--it was only shared as a result of the Meth Summit. The proposed Office of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment could be a central repository and point of contact for referral to the individual programs.

All of these examples point to the vast efforts that in the big picture relate to prevention and treatment of substance abuse and how it affects all aspects of society. The Committee believes that the Commissioner would have many opportunities to take the position and develop it into a tool for the Governor and the Legislature to assist communities in dealing with the problems that substance use and abuse, especially illegal drug use, cause in a community.

The Committee purposely chose the front end of the continuum--prevention and treatment--and left the drug control and enforcement to the Attorney General, the Department of Justice, and existing law enforcement efforts. The Committee did, however, chose to provide a link between prevention, treatment, and enforcement through the MBCC, which administers a number of prevention funds. The Commissioner would be a statutory member of the MBCC and would be able to communicate with the Attorney General and representatives from law enforcement, juvenile justice, and corrections and to be aware of and to coordinate programs.

For the Committee's proposals to succeed, it will require political will, agency cooperation, leadership, and public support. These cannot be legislated. The public spoke to the Committee and its staff throughout the interim on the need and desire for leadership and coordination, stating that people at the local level need information and support. While there is limited agency coordination and cooperation, without this proposal it does not exist at a systematic, integrated, or statewide level. This proposal would have one person focusing on the "big picture" in the area of substance abuse prevention and treatment to develop a strategic plan to assist communities in preventing and treating substance abuse and saving the human and societal costs of failure to do so.
CHAPTER 4

Areas for Future Study

★ Follow new Office and Commissioner of Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment, if LC0294 is successful in the 2005 Legislature.
★ Follow the DPHHS proposal for intra-agency prevention coordination and support of the Prevention Resource Center.
★ Follow the progress of Treatment Courts regarding statewide coordination and funding issues.
★ Inquire and monitor the development of strategic planning and performance measures for DPHHS (SB 160, Ch. 185, L. 2003).
★ Review CHIP contract provisions: reserve, administrative costs, Caring for Children Program.
★ Follow DPHHS progress on unregulated youth behavioral programs regarding registration and mandatory licensing.
★ Monitor the DPHHS-proposed study of Addictive and Mental Disorders Division mental health and chemical dependency facilities and any coordination with the developmental disabilities facilities.
★ Receive information on 2-1-1 in Montana, an FCC-approved telephone number for human services.
Legislative Staff Reports and Available Materials

Legislative Services Division

Petesch, Greg. Information Request #1668 Response to Representative Edith Clark on an analysis of the use and allocation of certain alcoholism treatment funds. October 8, 2003

Fox, Susan Byorth. "House Joint Resolution No. 3: Study Plan.” (Includes history and background, child abuse and neglect process, legal requirements, services and representation for children, resources, alternatives, related efforts, and study issues.) October 2003.

Fox, Susan Byorth. "Additional Background Information for SJR 11 Study" (includes prevention programs identified in the State Prevention Resource Directory, department programs, and other state models.) January 2004.

Legislative Fiscal Division

Legislative Audit Division

Department of Public Health and Human Services

- "What Happens Next? A Guide to the Child and Family Services Division

Brown, Shirley K. "Breakdown of Judicial Districts and Stage at which Counsel is Appointed for Indigent Parents (as of January, 2003)." April 30, 2004.

Unregulated Youth Residential Care Programs In Montana. November 2003.

Office of Public Instruction

Governor's Office

Public Reports

- Regular information from Dennis Brezina, Director of Aluminum Anonymous, Inc., regarding House Joint Resolution No. 31.
- Montana Childcare Resource Center and Referral Network, Janet Bush provided information on percentage of Montana school-aged children being served by licensed or unlicensed programs and on the Montana Afterschool Network providers. April 30, 2004.

• "Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Interim Committee: Unregulated Youth Residence Care Programs in Montana: Spring Creek Lodge Academy Information, Response, and Comments." Revised August 2, 2004.